

he DBU Graduate School of Business, in partnership with Corbin & Company, recently hosted the Great Thinkers in Finance Dinner on the DBU campus. The event featured three nationally renowned financial experts who provided perspectives on the current financial situation and its impact on the North Texas business community. All proceeds from the dinner will fund scholarships for DBU business students.

David Corbin, president and chief investment officer of Corbin and Company Capital Management, a firm specializing in the management of assets for individuals, trusts, pension plans, endowments and foundations, served as the host and moderator for the evening, posing questions and guiding the discussion. The panelists included David B. Miyazaki, senior vice president and portfolio manager for Confluence Investment Management; Stuart M. Sneddon, senior vice president and chief investment officer for Tower Asset Management; and David W. Tice,

In addition to the dinner and panel discussion, the over 200 guests had the opportunity to view displays of various projects by students in the DBU graduate business programs. Many of these projects were undertaken in connection with DBU's service-learning initiative, which connected students with community groups in need of various elements of research and analysis. By taking on these projects as a part of their course work, students not only increased their knowledge and skills, but they also helped to serve the community.

According to Dr. Sandra Reid, who helped coordinate the event, "The evening was a time for making new friends and reacquainting with old ones; a time for networking and establishing business relationships for the future. Many came with questions about the financial crisis and were wanting to hear what the 'experts say.' No one walked away disappointed!"
